Name: RISK 7 - AI System Safety, Failures, and Limitations

<Files\\Processed x Highly relevant\\2024-05-08 - NZH - Kiwis driving start-up gets $1> - § 1 reference coded [1.35% Coverage]

Reference 1 - 1.35% Coverage

Cruise, the General Motors self-driving subsidiary, removed its driverless cars from the road last year amid safety and legal concerns.

<Files\\Processed x Highly relevant\\2024-07-03 - RNZ - AI for school tutoring, instan> - § 2 references coded [3.94% Coverage]

Reference 1 - 1.98% Coverage

In March 2023 more than 1000 tech leaders, including Elon Musk, signed an open letter calling for a pause in AI development, warning of profound risks to humanity from an arms race to develop powerful digital minds not even their creators could understand or control.

Reference 2 - 1.96% Coverage

One morbid metric sweeping Silicon Valley is P-Doom: the probability of doom, where zero means humanity will be fine and 100 means we're all dead. A survey recently found the average AI engineer had a P-Doom of 40 - meaning a 40 percent chance AI will wipe us out.

<Files\\Processed x Highly relevant\\2024-07-18 - SPN - The more you know about AI, th> - § 1 reference coded [1.91% Coverage]

Reference 1 - 1.91% Coverage

Stepping through the course over four weeks, I oscillated between feeling like a lab rat, having regular existential freakouts, and realising that as foreign and apocalyptic as the generative AI revolution might seem, learning about its contextual use within business was awfully familiar.